Anna Sanina

National Research University Higher School of Economics (Saint Petersburg, Russia)

Tuesday, September 29

12:15 pm

Ballantine Hall 244

Drawing upon the results of several research projects undertaken over the last decade, Professor Sanina will address two distinct currents in the development of patriotism in contemporary Russia: officially-sanctioned educational initiatives that appeal to the Soviet past and display a number of militaristic features and “underground” tendencies that have emerged through Internet-based means of communication and routinely challenge official political discourse.

Anna Sanina is Associate Professor of Public Administration at National Research University Higher School of Economics in St. Petersburg, Russia. She is currently a visiting Fulbright scholar at Indiana University, under the auspices of the Russian and East European Institute.
